CHAMPAGNE

Champagne is the wine of celebration, commiseration, racecourse success, christenings, wedding & seductions, making the perfect aperitif or after-dinner refresher. There are many Champagne Houses, all making wine in their own style. Most Champagne can be a blend of Pinot Noir, Chardonnay & Pinot Meunier, there are exceptions, when made only from Chardonnay the Champagne will be listed as 'Blanc de Blanc'. Rosé has become very fashionable in recent years, it's lovely salmon pink colour will enhance any party or celebration.

BORDEAUX

Our claret list is an ever changing feast, offering classified wines and those little gems from lesser known areas. Bordeaux is the largest fine wine region in the world, it's great glories are it's fine red wines, together with a tiny production of wonderful sweet wines from Sauternes & Barsac. Bordeaux is split between two main districts, on the left bank of the Garonne is the Medoc where the wines in general are Cabernet Sauvignon driven with a little added Merlot. On the right bank we have St. Emilion and Pomerol, here the wines are Merlot driven with varying amounts of Cabernet Franc, these are very general comments as in life there are always many exceptions.

Alsace is one of the prettiest, and the most gastronomically rewarding and least known wine producing areas in France.

Lying on the lower slopes of the Vosges mountains, the vineyards are blessed with wonderful sunny days and just the right amount of rain to produce lovely characterful wines. The area has changed hands many times over the past 150 years between France and Germany, this has made the culture of winemaking different from the rest of France.
